From Blackwood River Arts Trail Inc....

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the second year of the Blackwood River Arts Trail, a young, but growing event that has brought together a vibrant community of artists from across the Blackwood River Valley region. An industrious committee of volunteers, including coordinators in each of the major towns that are within our reach, have worked together to expand the artistic and cultural offerings for 2022. We are excited to present the work of over 60 visual artists in 30 venues in an area covered by the four shires of Nannup, Bridgetown-Greenbushes, Donnybrook-Balingup and new this year, Boyup Brook.

But that's not all! With a small change to our name (from Art to Arts) has come a large change: we have founded the inaugural Blackwood River Film Festival. Running over the weekend of 9-10 April, a program of exciting, ground-breaking, diverse, and culturally enriching short films, all created by Australian film makers, is being presented. Throughout this guide (and on our website) you will find more information about what else is happening across the region during the trail such as the family friendly 'Zombies the Musical', visual art and dance workshops and musical entertainment.

We have also included information about accommodation and food outlets, maps to help guide you and opposite, an overview of opening days at each of our venues so you can plan your getaway

So head on over to our wonderful region, full of vibrant towns, beautiful scenery, fabulous food and welcoming locals that will do everything they can to make your trip memorable and enjoyable. Come wander as you discover the magic that awaits you in the heart of the southwest.

Held in the grounds of Olivia Grove Cafe and Farmshop you will be treated to an eclectic mix of artworks by RT Arts and Louisa Warburton Rees as well as locally made products made at Olivia Grove. Heritage metals and forest timbers are turned into timeless pieces of artwork made locally by RT Arts, reflecting the hardships of our early pioneers. Louisa benefits on many levels from painting. It is a creative outlet in which she can become completely lost. She always paints straight onto the canvas with little or no plan and sees what happens – it's always a surprise!

Interwoven

Three Balingup women come together to showcase their individual works which are a reflection of their lives on the land and their unique, creative community. A sense of interconnectedness is apparent in the three artists' exhibited works which include intricately woven objects, sculptural forms, netted neck pieces, paintings and mixed media wall works.

River Trek

Six Nannup artists respond to the exhibition theme with an eclectic mix of works in traditional and contemporary styles, inspired by the proximity and prominence of the Blackwood River, its tributaries and the surrounding country. Robert's works respond to the psychological while Anneli creates depictions of country life honouring the people who live and hold stewardship over it. Andrew and Miranda's paintings are representational observations of the Blackwood River at Nannup, and Thelma uses fabrics to create beautiful textural pieces as well as intricate pen and ink works. Helen explores various painting and sculptural styles.

An exhibition featuring photos that remind us of past times, framed in reclaimed timber, and posters that are inspired by advertising of different eras in the 20th century. Nicky enjoys photographing local rustic scenes that are reminiscent of a slower paced life and simpler times. Miranda is a representational painter who loves to have a project - this one is about recreating beverage posters from the past using local identities as her subjects. ### Contemporary Intuitive Art

Josh works primarily with acrylic paint on canvas and utilises techniques such as bleeding, staining, blending and leafing. Using a selection of brushes, pallet knives and other tools, he brings life to the canvas by introducing texture and vibrant colour to generate mood. He takes advantage of contrast to produce dramatic skies and adds complementary colours with balancing neutrals to produce works that are truly unique. Josh's abstracts are mainly based on Australian landscapes and feature his beautifully blended skies - representing his transformation from a dark past into the light of his future.

Victoria has been photographing people on her doorstep for years. She loves the creative freedom that crafting personal projects and exhibitions allow and she believes that it helps to keep her authenticity when working as a commercial photographer. The Nannupian Diaries is her interpretation of Nannup showcasing a cross-section of the town's characters. The exhibition is work in progress as the project is ongoing.

Anneli will be exhibiting a selection of 2D & 3D works focused around horses.

My gallery is a showcase of paintings, drawings and print material inspired by nature, from the tiny hidden worlds within our forests to the all-encompassing skies over the greater landscapes. I love the spontaneous use of paint media, fluid in watercolours or the layering of oils to convey the emotive essence of that captured moment.

Unbound

Enchanted by their colours, designs and texture, I have collected close to 2000 discarded silk ties foraged from all over the world. Strongly influenced by the Viennese artists Gustav Klimt and Friedensreich Hundertwasser, I use these ties to create decorative works.

UNBOUND is the culmination of a decade of exploration and means either "not bound up or tied up" or a "positive feeling that has no limits". As I unpick each tie, inspiration and designs crystallise; as I sew and quilt, I feel unbounded by the constraints of time. My vast collection is housed in my new purpose-built gallery and studio.

Explorations

As a representational artist I love the challenges of recreating the beauty to be found in the natural world through painting landscapes en plein air and in the studio; of painting wildflowers and objects in pleasing compositions (often including things of personal significance); and the endless fascination of painting people. I enjoy exploring the use of paint on various surfaces and how the materials and mediums available to artists can be transformed to create images that provide lasting pleasure and colour to our lives and environs.

Textiles, Basketry and Paintings

After migrating to Australia, Marijke was instantly attracted to and inspired by the vast open spaces and colour nuances in the Australian landscape. Yearning to find a way to express this in creative form, 40 years ago she began felting using fine merino wool and silk. Her practice continues to expand in many different forms.

John is a self-taught artist, who turned to painting after many years of a successful equestrian career in Europe. No doubt it is in his blood as he came from a family of trained artists in Amsterdam, one of the great artistic centres of Europe.

Maranup Artists

Sally is a multi-disciplinary artist, her art practice centres around the cultural and historical landscape of Australia.

She has a number of recycled (rabbit proof) fencing wire outdoor sculptures scattered around the property, indoor copper wire sculptural forms, native grass basketry and paintings on display.

Kim will be exhibiting a collection of her fine silver, bronze, glass enamelled jewellery and metal relief pictures. Her works are inspired by native flora, the natural environment and the enthusiasm of other people. The metal is reclaimed, an important reason for using this medium.

Big Sky Country

Lori opens her studio with a preview to her collection 'Big Sky Country', a solo exhibition exploring the healing process connection to our landscape champions. Exhibiting at Gallerysmith, Melbourne mid 2022. Lori's signature figurative botanicals works are driven by her generational connection to place and the narrative of her family. Botanical detailing is used to reflect personal transformation and sets the framework to cultivate self awareness and understanding whilst dually illustrating our interdependent relationship with our environment. Lori is a nationally awarded artist.

Meriol Beatty
Sandy Chambers
Beverly Prideaux

Neil Nicholson
Carina Wilson

Rustic, Rural and Recycled

Meriol recycles pieces of corrugated iron, turning them into vibrant garden art. Carina takes recycling even further by creating art that uses only recycled material or nature's treasures. Neil has a flare for finding rusty old cars, abandoned homesteads and windmills that he paints with acrylics, while Sandy uses watercolour for his depictions of the Australian bush with a special attention to the iconic Grass Tree. Beverly's art gets back to nature with textile sculptures and paintings, using a needle felting technique and natural fibres.

Drawing, painting, stitching, writing inspired by memory and time in wild spaces. "For me, Art has always been an analogy for life. We can repeat patterns, returning to techniques and practices which lead to known outcomes, and we can also take leaps into the unknown, trusting that where we land will have something to teach us. This is why I create... Creativity beckons and reassures me."

I invite you to visit my studio verandah and garden which will be filled with drawing, painting, writing and stitching....inspired by memory, and time spent walking.

Bridgetown

I have always loved to create and, with a passion for history, when looking at historic buildings I feel a connection and strong sense of the stories that buildings can tell.

I created a body of work depicting Bridgetown-Greenbushes Historical buildings as a way to connect people with these buildings and their stories. I will be exhibiting original drawings, digitised coloured prints and a colouring book created from my original drawings that I hope will encourage children today to understand and appreciate not only art but the historical buildings that tell the stories of our past.

To be perceived as a serious artist doesn't mean you have to paint serious things. You'll find no hidden messages in my paintings, no political statements, nothing that will make you cogitate the meaning of your own existence. But whether you are looking directly at my painting or just get a fleeting glance as you pass it by, I hope that what you experience is the uncontrollable urge to smile or at least get a small skip in your step. Lots of layers, lots of colours, lots of fun.

Nature's Layers

I have been creating art and exhibiting in my home studio for 25 years. My love of gardening and bush walking inspires this exhibition. I have a collection of mostly small, framed, acrylic and mixed media works on board. Working with matte paints and other media to explore nature, I use a playful application with brayer, knife and stamps to create layers of texture. In this collection I explore something new for me: chalk paints in an earth palette.
